

Figure 19. (a) Part of actual hybridized image with spots larger than average; (b) simulated microarray with larger spots and spots overlapping with their neighbors; (c) original background intensity extraction program produces undetected spot (target in the middle without outer boundary); (d) improved background extraction program more accurately measures the local background intensity and effectively allows detection of weak targets.